

SHERIFF WILLIAM N. MORRIS JR.
Criminal Courts Building
150 Washington Avenue
Memphis, Tennessee
Telephone 525-7531

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sheriff William N. Morris Jr., today announced the appointment of two former Memphis newsmen to act as press representatives during the trial of James Earl Ray, accused killer of the Rev. Martin Luther King.

The two --- both former reporters for The Commercial Appeal in Memphis --- are Charles Holmes, who now serves as public information officer for Memphis State University, and E.W. Brody, president of a Memphis public relations firm, Sheriff Morris said.

Both men are former police reporters and Mr. Holmes acted as volunteer press secretary to the Memphis Police Department in the days immediately following the slaying of Dr. King.

"With their assistance, we will assist the more than 1,000 U.S. and foreign news representatives expected for the trial in quickly and accurately disseminating the news and in accurately portraying Memphis and Shelby County to their readers, listeners and viewers," Sheriff Morris said.

Mr. Holmes will act as press secretary for the law enforcement agencies involved in the trial and will be responsible for dissemination of information concerning the case on a day-to-day and hour-to-hour basis.

"Mr. Brody will assist the Sheriff's Department in handling special requests from the media and will represent the department in what we hope will become a community-wide effort toward taking advantage of an unparalleled opportunity to present Memphis and Shelby County to the nation and the world," the Sheriff said.

"Memphis was treated somewhat less than fairly by some news media in the wake of Dr. King's slaying, and we overcome any lingering misconceptions concerning our community by insuring that all media representatives who come here for the trial are exposed to the full story of Memphis and its accomplishments."

"Mr. Brody has agreed to assist the Sheriff's Department in this effort, enlist assistance from other organizations in the community, and co-ordinate our plans with those of any groups which may be similarly disposed."

The trial can be expected to continue for several months, Sheriff Morris said, and newsmen assigned to come to Memphis will have ample opportunity to gain a complete and accurate picture of our city and its people provided we give them an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Holmes will work with the Sheriff's Department, the Attorney General's office, the Memphis Police Department and the court to insure that the news media are afforded all information which can be made available within limits established by the courts and the Constitution, the Sheriff said.

He will serve for the duration of the trial under an appointment by Governor Buford Ellington with the approval of Memphis State University President Dr. C.C. Humphreys.

"We anticipate that the trial will begin in the fall and may continue for as long as three months," Sheriff Morris said. "Our work to meet the needs of the news media will be complicated by a critical shortage of courtroom seats and of working space for the press.

"In order to most effectively utilize available facilities, we are making plans for a series of meetings with representatives of the court, the law enforcement agencies involved, and the news media to determine how best to meet the needs of all involved."

A news media committee consisting of William Sorrells, Assistant Managing Editor of The Commercial Appeal; Van Pritchard, Jr., City Editor of the Memphis Press Scimitar; and Norman Brewer, News Director of WACT, has been appointed to represent those who will be covering the trial.

"With Mr. Holmes and Mr. Brody, we will meet with them and take all possible steps to insure that the needs of the media are met," Sheriff Morris said.
