Gault Decision Held Not to Affect Standard of Proof for Delinquency

Following are condensed versions of the latest opinions of the California State Supreme Court. These brief statements of the rulings are printed for reading by the attorney. The full text of the opinion should be used in any case in which it is cited in litigation.

State Supreme Court has held that the far-reaching In re Gault (S. 1) decision does not compel a state to establish the facts of a charge of juvenile delinquency by the criminal standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Defendant, a juvenile, had stolen a car and taken a pistol from the driver. He visited his girl friend and while showing it to her shot her in the chest. He contended that he thought it was not loaded after hearing a story that a dating stranger had done the deed. But when he returned with the gun, he admitted doing the shooting. Defendant was held in a ward of the court and committed to the Youth Authority.

Reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court rejected defendant's argument that the Gault decision requires a charge of juvenile delinquency to be proved by the criminal standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Gault decision, the Supreme Court said, expressly declined to alter the standard or quantum of proof. The decision did not create the "full panoply of rights accorded to an adult accused in a criminal case."

Supreme Court had it inferred from the Gault decision that the quantum of proof was left to the state; and the quantum of evidence as a standard of proof in juvenile proceedings is to have the great weight of authority, and California follows the majority.

Supreme Court said it cannot conclude "that the standard of proof in California is clearly, positively, and unmistakably beyond a reasonable doubt."

Writing opinion said that whatever may be said of the Gault decision, it stands for the proposition that a minor must be afforded the same rights as a defendant in a criminal case. "A proceeding in which a juvenile is to be a ward of the court is in reality a criminal proceeding, and the right to insist that guilt be shown beyond a reasonable doubt is a fundamental and constitutional right in a criminal case."

Reagan Asks for Reorganization of State Boards and Commissions

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Governor Ronald Reagan today announced a sweeping reorganization plan for state government boards and commissions.

The plan calls for the elimination of 31 boards and commissions, restructuring 10 and consolidating 19. It also calls for the elimination of 10 agencies with overlapping functions, the department of professional and vocational education, and the department of corrections.

The reorganization plan will "increase efficiency, eliminate unnecessary duplication of functions, and consolidate overlapping functions to increase coordination and decrease overlap."

He also called for the legislature to give consideration to the creation of a Department of Revenue, which has been attempted for many years under various names.

"There is a need for re-organization which will bring a greater long-term stability to California's current and future administration," he said.

Law Commission Plans Res Ipsa Loquitur Modification

A tentative recommendation has been prepared by the California Law Revision Commission that would modify the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur.

The Commission is now soliciting comments on any tentative recommendations regarding the doctrine, and will consider all arguments before recommending any action to the legislature.

A copy of the tentative recommendations can be obtained from the California Law Revision Commission.

he declared. "I urge you to overcome all obstacles in carrying out this organizational reform which has been so uniformly supported and so repeatedly thwarted."

In addition, the governor asked that an extension of his authority to effect re-organization when needed, with legislative approval, beyond December 31, 1969, when the authority expires.

Reagan's requests asks elimination of the following:

- Program advisory committee to the consumer council; United Spanish War Veterans' Commission; Television Advisory Committee; Capitol Building and Planning Commission; Technical Advisory Committee to Department of Commerce; District Securities Commission; Office of Atomic Energy Development and Radiation; Departmental Coordinating Committee on Atomic Energy;

- Advisory Council on Atomic Energy; Colorado River Boundary Commission; California - Nevada Interstate Compact Commission; Goose Lake Compact Commission; The Governor's Council; Board of Pilot Commissioners for San Francisco, San Pablo, Suisun, Humboldt, San Diego Bays; Planning Advisory Commission; State Soil Conservation Advisory Board; Public Library Board;

Defendants Should Pay Costs When Not Appearing in Court, Hahn Says

A proposal that could save the county $200,000 per year by requiring defendants to pay court costs if they do not appear in court on schedule is now under study by county officials.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn proposed the study after discussing the matter with Los Angeles Municipal Court Judge Joseph Grillo who requires defendants who do not show on schedule to pay the costs for bail forfeiture, issuing a bench warrant and rescheduling hearings.

Hahn said, "It costs $25.35 each time a defendant does not appear in court and a bench warrant is issued. About 700 of these cases occur each month in the 24 judicial districts of the county. Half the number are in the Los Angeles Judicial District alone."

Legalization of Mexican Handball Game Sought Here

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Proponents of Jal Alai, Mexican handball game which is a popular sport south of the border, once again seek to bring the sport, along with pari-mutuel wagering, to California.

Assemblyman John P. Quimby, D-Rialto, introduced AB 748, almost a duplicate of his measure of two years ago, which was withdrawn because other revenue measures were being considered at the time.

Quimby said he is re-introducing the bill because of the urgent need for additional revenues this year.

Besides the entertaining features of the sport, California features realize a new source of revenue amounting to about $4 million the first year of operation. He pointed out that in Florida, where the game

Police News 'Dim-out' Blamed on ABA Rules

COLUMBIA, MISSOURI — The American Bar Association's standards on fair trial and free press are reportedly being used by some police officials to close files once open to journalists, according to the Freedom of Information Center.

The complaints emphasize the continuing conflict between the press and law enforcement officials over the right of access to police files.

According to the center, "the common law is clear that there are many records kept by public officials and agencies which are not open to public inspection."

It said that the police may be incorrect in their thinking that the Reardon Report requires secrecy, but it appears that they are entitled to make their records secret if they so desire.

The center quoted the Providence, R.I., Journal as saying that a refusal by Newport police to reveal details of an investigation of a double murder touched off a wave of fear and false rumor which reached near panic proportions.

The newspaper said policemen drove through the city streets with shotguns pointed toward the sky while rumors spread among the citizens. One woman called the paper to ask if she should keep her children home from school.

It was 15 hours after the killings that the chief of police disclosed the names of the two victims and a few details of the murders and investigations.

The right to inspect records kept by public agencies has existed as common law for many years, the center said, as shown in the case of Paluch v. Carbell, Civ. App. 173 S.W. 777, and Haller v. Y.

Conjugal Visits For Prisoners Backed by Judge

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Judge Raymond P. Alexander recommended on Tuesday that Philadelphia should make a "courageous" stand by permitting conjugal visits by the spouses of married prisoners under proper McGrath, 67 P. 2d 838, 100 Mont. 490.

However, one problem is that there is no single test which can be applied to determine what are and what are not public records, the center stated.

In Miller v. Murphy, 248 P. 834, 78 Cal. App. 751, it was stated that the mere fact that a document is kept by a public agency or placed in the custody of a public official does not necessarily make it a public record.

Other cases dealing with this point are: Blandford v. McClellan, 173 Misc. 15, 16 N.Y.S. 2d 810; People v. Harrett, 236 N.Y.S. 336, 131 Misc. 73, affirmed 230 N.Y.S. 26, 224 App. Div. 137, affirmed 164 N.E. 802, 240 N.Y. 806; and Barrickman v. Lyman, 160 S.W. 267, 155 Ky. 710.

Unfortunately for journalists, the center said, the courts have held with great uniformity that investigatory and arrest records kept by law-enforcement agencies are not public.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia phrased its opinion on the subject in U.S. v. Mackey, 36 F.R.D. 431, in 1965:

"Records of law enforcement agencies, such as the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia are regarded as confidential and are not subject to public inspection."

"This is in the interest of law enforcement both for the protection of the public as well as for the protection of individual members of the public who may be under investigation or submit information."

motorist. They failed to bring action within the one-year period, the uninsured motorist had left town. They sought recovery from their insurance company on the ground that the statute of limitations should be extended when the uninsured motorist leaves town. The trial court held that appellants had no cause of action.

In affirming the judgment, the C.A. held that appellants were fully able to protect themselves within the one-year period following the accident. The statute of limitations can be extended, the court said, if the uninsured motorist leaves town after the cause of action had already accrued. In this case, the court said, the motion had not.

L.A. Group Aids Immigrants On Hard Road Toward Citizenship

From time to time the federal courts in the Los Angeles Civic Center perform a service that is of special significance, both personal and national. They grant the sacred rights and duties of United States citizenship to thousands of aliens, many of whom for years have hoped and prayed for this event.

Sentimental though we Americans often are about citizenship, we are prone to assume that when the federal judge technically transforms an alien to a citizen the whole job has been done and the "fortunate recipients" are on their own. Actually, it is an incredibly rough and confusing road that most aliens have to travel after landing in Los Angeles in search of a livelihood and citizenship.

That is why the International Institute, 433 Boyle Avenue, came into being half a century and more ago. Through all these years this philanthropic organization has been helping to smooth the road to citizenship, helping to solve the problems after citizenship of the newcomers related to language, employment, housing, education and that frightening mass of regulations known as city, county, state and federal laws. Within its limited facilities the institute stands ready to serve any alien in need. Of course statistics dictate that immigrants from Mexico — in excess of half a million — present the largest problem numerically.

A quarter of a century ago the community suffered from the bloody "zoot suit" riots, heavily participated in by youths of Mexican background. In down-to-earth social service the International Institute had done a great deal to counteract such outbreaks but its limited staff could not, and cannot, cope with the tens of thousands of restless disoriented youth. Yet year by year as its plant, its United Way-approved budget and popular support have increased, its effectiveness has grown. Concurrently other social agencies, the public schools, the churches and the recreation areas of local governments have awakened to the problems of aliens and those seeking citizenship.

Sociologists have asserted that Los Angeles's problem, as in many other cities, has been compounded because of the sudden expansion of urban population. With slower growth, they say, we would have done a better job educationally and socially in assimilating the newcomers. While similar in some respects to burgeoning Negro problems, the needs of arrivals from foreign lands are sufficiently different to justify the Institute in limiting its efforts to the latter group. Classes in language, citizenship and health are a part of its program.

Showing of Emotional Imbalance Seems Aim of Sirhan's Testimony

By Kenyon Roberts
The witches brew of Middle Eastern politics and the never never land of occult philosophy are the topics featured at the trial of Sirhan B. Sirhan for the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, these days. Sirhan has already admitted from the witness stand that he fatally shot Kennedy in this city last June 5. By letting him talk about his dabbings in transcendentalism and present in impassioned language his Arab nationalist sentiments on Palestine, Sirhan's defense team would seem to be adhering to its announced strategy of showing that he was emotionally, if not mentally, unbalanced when he pulled the trigger in the Ambassador Hotel and thus lacks the full legal qualifications to be sent to the gas chamber.

Deputy Public Defender to Head Employees Assn.

Deputy Public Defender Charles A. Maple has been officially installed as president of the Los Angeles County Employees Association (LACEA), in a swearing-in ceremony at the County Hall of Administration. The oath of office was administered by Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Alarcon.

Maple was elected to the office after serving as interim President following the resignation of Sheriff's Lieutenant Roy J. Kundtz last fall to become chief of Police of Los Alamitos in Orange County.

Maple, 46, graduated from Harvard Law School in 1952. He has been Secretary-Treasurer of the California Public Defenders and Legal Aid Association for the past 10 years, and serves on State Bar Committee on Indigent Criminal Defense and Legal Services. He taught law at Mount San Antonio College, and also lectured at the USC Mental Health Institute on Law and Psychiatry.

A county employee since his graduation from law school, Maple joined the Public Defender's office following a position as juvenile camp counselor and hospital admissions worker. He has served LACEA as first vice president and second vice president, and as chairman of committees in the field of legislation and retirement.

The board has indicated that as an estimate, four jail alai frontons, or arenas, could be operated in major population centers, such as Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Fresno, Sacramento, or Orange county. At the end of four years, Quimby says that almost ten million persons would be attending the games in California. "The ancient Banquet game", the assemblyman said, "has become the most popular spectator wagering sport in South America, Spain, the Philippines, and Mexico."

Probate Div. Secretary Ida Pressman Retires

Ida Pressman, who has served as secretary to Probate Division Chiefs John Sweeney, the late Bob Curtis, and Hal Flammor, has announced her retirement after 34 years of service with the County. Her many friends in the legal profession, who will miss her friendly and knowledgeable assistance, are invited to join her other friends and co-workers in honoring her at a dinner at the Thistle Inn on March 19. Negro Police Backed By Georgia Lawmakers

ATLANTA — (UPI) — The lower house of the Georgia legislature has given its full endorsement to a bill "emphasizing" the right of Negro police officers to arrest white persons — men or women.

Negro Rep. James Dean of Atlanta introduced the bill and after a flurry of debate, most of it hostile, it passed 186-15.

The lopsided vote came after it was discovered that Georgia law already provides full arrest powers for all law enforcement officers.

House Speaker George L. Smith told the lawmakers that Dean's bill would merely make the law "more emphatic."

The bill spells out the right of police officers regardless of "race, creed or national origin" to arrest any person breaking the law.

Dean said he knew that present laws provided for full arrest powers of all law officers but he added that in some Georgia cities this law was not being obeyed.

Court Reporters to Hold Bal de Triomphe

The combined court reporters associations of the Superior Court, Municipal Court and the general deposition reporters will hold a Bal de Triomphe Friday, March 14, at the Castaway Restaurant, 1250 Harvard Road, Burbank.

The "silent people" of the courtroom invite their attorney and judicial friends to join the celebration. The social hour will begin at 7:00 p.m., with dinner and dancing at 8:00. Reservations, at $12.50 each, may be made by calling 284-3571.

New State Withholding System

By Henry V. MacArthur
SACRAMENTO. — (CNS) — Recommendation for imposition of a withholding tax for payment of state income taxes, long opposed by Governor Ronald Reagan, was a prime feature of a report submitted to the governor Monday by his advisory commission on tax reform.

Pressure has been on the governor during his more than two years in office, both from Republicans and Democrats, but primarily from the minority party, to lift his opposition to withholding, principally on the ground that withholding would provide about $100 million additional revenue to the state, with an over-all tax increase.

In addition to the withholding proposal, the commission's report is loaded with additional controversial matters, including a previously suggested "service" tax, which involve a five percent levy on utilities.

In all, Houston I. Flournoy, state controller and chairman of the commission, indicated the implementation of all the proposals would bring in some $914 million in revenue to the state, more than $500 million of which would revert in initial relief to cities and counties for property tax relief purposes.

Another controversial recommendation proposes a statewide ad valorem tax on property through pooling of the first $2.88 per $100 of assessed valuation of educational purposes. This, it was claimed, would not be a new tax, but a device whereby funds would be allocated to schools on the basis of population, rather than point of origin. In other words, it would serve to obtain extra revenue from wealthy, low-rate districts for the benefit of the poorer and more populous districts.

The commission proposes "bloc grants to cities and counties" California, providing some $5 million property tax relief which it said could be accomplished "with no appreciable increase" in state taxes.

The commission would increase the home-owners assessment exemption from $750 to $1,000, as indicated proposed revisions in a veterans' tax exemption to equal

Report on Tax Reforms Suggests New State Withholding System

By Henry V. MacArthur
SACRAMENTO. — (CNS) — Recommendation for imposition of a withholding tax for payment of state income taxes, long opposed by Governor Ronald Reagan, was a prime feature of a report submitted to the governor Monday by his advisory commission on tax reform. Pressure has been on the governor during his more than two years in office, both from Republicans and Democrats, but primarily from the minority party, to lift his opposition to withholding, principally on the ground that withholding would provide about $100 million additional revenue to the state, with an over-all tax increase. In addition to the withholding proposal, the commission's report is loaded with additional controversial matters, including a previously suggested "service" tax, which involve a five percent levy on utilities. In all, Houston I. Flourmoy, state controller and chairman of the commission, indicated the implementation of all the proposals would bring in some $914 million in revenue to the state, more than $500 million of which would revert in initial relief to cities and counties for property tax relief purposes. Another controversial recommendation proposes a statewide ad valorem tax on property through pooling of the first $2.85 per $100 of assessed valuation of educational purposes. This, it was claimed, would not be a new tax, but a device whereby funds would

Negro Police Backed By Georgia Lawmakers

ATLANTA — (UPI) — The lower house of the Georgia legislature has given its full endorsement to a bill "emphasizing" the right of Negro police officers to arrest white persons — men or women. Negro Rep. James Dean of Atlanta introduced the bill and after a flurry of debate, most of it hostile, it passed 108-15. The lopsided vote came after it was discovered that Georgia law already provides full arrest powers for all law enforcement officers. House Speaker George L. Smith told the lawmakers that Dean's bill would merely make the law "more emphatic."

The bill spells out the right of police officers regardless of "race, creed or national origin" to arrest any person breaking the law. Dean said he knew that present laws provided for full arrest powers of all law officers but he added that in some Georgia cities this law was not being obeyed.

Court Reporters to Hold Bal de Triomphe

The combined court reporters associations of the Superior Court, Municipal Court and the general deposition reporters will hold a Bal de Triomphe Friday, March 14, at the Casaway Restaurant, 1250 Harvard Road, Burbank. The "silent people" of the courtroom invite their attorney and judicial friends to join the celebration. The social hour will begin at 7:00 p.m., with dinner and dancing at 9:00. Reservations, at $12.50 each, may be made by calling 284-3571.

be allocated to schools on the basis of population, rather than point of origin. In other words, it would serve to obtain extra revenue from wealthy, low-rate districts for the benefit of the poorer and more populous districts. The commission proposes "bloc" grants to cities and counties of California, providing some $330 million property tax relief annually, which it said could be accomplished "with no appreciable increase" in state taxes. The commission would increase the home-owners assessment exemption from $750 to $1,000, and indicated proposed revisions in the veterans' tax exemption to equalize

Review of the Law Reviews

By Caryl Warner

Oil Pollution of the Ocean. by Joseph C. Sweeney, Professor of Law, XXXVII Fordham Law Review 155, December, 1968, deals with the subject of oil pollution caused by ships at sea. The principal remedy is for damages based upon negligence.

The review is timely, by reason of the Union Oil tide land oil well drainage at Santa Barbara. The author discusses Strict Liability, Liability for Fault, Res ipsa loquitur, and Absolute Liability. He also treats Liability within the Industry, the Remedy in Admiralty against the Ship, the Remedy in the Civil Courts, Trespass and Negligence, Injunction, Proposals to Change Existing Law, Liabilities on the High Seas, including classical decision of Rylands v. Fletcher (1868) and the recent Torrey Canyon (1967) litigation arising from the discharge of petroleum from a tanker.

In regard to liabilities on the high seas, Professor Sweeney expounded as follows:

"The question of recovery of the costs expended in destruction of the vessel, prevention of pollution and clean-up of polluted beaches and wildlife is especially difficult in the United States and Britain because until now there has been no duty on the government acting as the sovereign to do this. This is quite apart from the question of the rights of the government as property owner to be compensated for losses to beach front property of which it is the title holder. Legislation is now being prepared in the United States which will ensure the government's rights against the shipowner for these costs, enforceable by a maritime lien and not subject to the limitation of liability act."

As to the liability to parties outside the maritime industry, the review declared:

"The law is not so well settled when we come to the private law questions of oil pollution damage to beachfront owners, farmers of the sea bed, pier owners, resort owners and small boat owners. The law is at best uncertain with respect to the public law questions of the rights and liabilities of states in combating pollution."

Be the remedy trespass or negligence, the review concluded as follows:

"Thus, it seems clear that the principal remedy for the pollution claimant is an action for damages based on negligence, as demonstrated by a policy-based decision of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, Rose v. Socony, 173A, 627. In that case the court, in the absence of proof of negligence, refused to extend the trespass doctrine to pollution damage of a well and stream by percolation of underground waters polluted by petroleum products at the defendant's adjoining refinery," citing the 1956 English decision of Esso Petroleum Ltd. v. Southport Corp.

Note: The Union Oil litigation is destined to contribute to the case law on this challenging subject.

agencies that "the inner city" need not be a decaying area of neglected buildings, unkempt streets and poor transportation. The ambition, the energy and the intelligence of the types of people whom the Institute serves can transform older city sections to attractive productive neighborhoods. As a doctor would say, flight to the suburbs is not "indicated." They offer examples to prove it.

But students of our 'inner city' dilemma have come to realize that somehow our millions of tax dollars and charity contributions too often lose some of their potency before reaching their destination. Administrators and donors of such monies are adequately effective only when 'electrically' charged, so to speak, with deep human concern for our fellow men.

One of the delights on visiting International Institute is to share in one of its several festivals. Different nationality groups on different days stage impressive dance programs performed by "lay" artists dressed in previous native costumes brought from the old country. The pride and enthusiasm with which these colorfully dressed performers do their routines is something that even a skilled Hollywood choreographer cannot duplicate. When the celebrants in addition to their folk dances offer for sale native foods, refreshments and hand craft articles the visitor to the Institute gets a new glimpse of cosmopolitan Los Angeles.

Most of our European newcomers first saw America via New York harbor and the Statue of Liberty — some with tears of joy. Yet they never had heard of Emma Lazarus' lines, inscribed on the base of the statue to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door.

Administering the citizenship oath is very essential — and dramatic — but we need much more programming in the spirit of the International Institute and the Statue of Liberty message.

Aim of Testimony Withholding Tax

read "The Power of Positive Thinking" by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, a line of inquiry which was not pursued further.

Describing his other books as texts of "white magic", Sirhan told of following their recommended exercises in mental concentration, designed to influence the extraneous behavior of physical phenomena.

Claims A Success

He never tried levitation, Sirhan said in response to a query by Cooper, because it was still a feat "too powerful for me." However, on his own assertion ("I cannot prove this, but it is so—"), he did achieve the rather remarkable feat of inducing his mother through mental commands to get up in the middle of the night and go to the bathroom.

"Mother, get up and go to the toilet!", Sirhan said he yelled from his own room in the family home on the night in question. Nothing happened at first, so he went to bed. Presently the radio and lights came on in the house, and he heard his mother flushing the toilet. "She never did that before, late at night," Sirhan declared.

He also claimed to have reached the point in his occult studies where he was able to influence the behavior of the porces at a local horse race.

Assails 'Zionists'

The real fire in the morning's testimony, however, came when the defense left the subject of mysticism and entered the realm of the Arab-Israeli conflict. Sometimes using profanity, Sirhan gave voice to vehement feelings against "Zionists," American Jews who support them with funds and political pressure, former President Johnson's foreign policy, and Anglo-French machinations in World War I.

Displaying a remarkable knowledge of the history of Zionism, he gave correctly the date of Theodore Herzl's death (1904) and cited the now-obscure Sykes-Picot accord of 1916 whereby the British and French agreed on a carving up (later modified in details) of what was then the Turkish Middle East, but misapprehended with an "e" the Balfour declaration of 1917 whereby Britain seemed to promise Palestine as a national home for the Jews.

Sirhan even conceded that Zionism was born in the late 19th century because its originators — Herzl and the others — were convinced that Jews would never be safe from "Gentile" anti-Semitism unless they had a homeland of their own.

Before the post-World War I Zionist-sponsored immigration to Palestine, he declared, Arabs and Jews lived "antifactorily" together in the Holy Land. Then the troubles came, and now "I have no

Expansion of the sales tax, it was contemplated, through a utilities tax on sale of electricity, gas, water, telephone, telegraph, personal care services such as cleaning, laundry, barber and beauty services; transportation, such as auto repair greasing, parking and rental; and recreation, such as spectator sports, club and fraternal dues, radio and television repairs, would increase the sales tax take to the point where the bloc grants could be met.

Revision of the state's personal income tax laws are in order, the commission said, with restoration of the exemptions removed in 1967 in favor of tax credits, which is found to have worked a hardship on large families. It proposed allocation of 10 percent of all personal income taxes be allocated to local government.

The commission's report, it was observed, has little new in it, and in fact, proposed increases in taxation, rather than all-around "relief." No proposals were included to make certain that should the package ever be adopted by the legislature, city and county governments could not deflect the minor benefits provided by increasing their own tax rates in the future.

Attempt to extend the sales tax to service and utilities have been made previously. The legislature with some regularity, has sent them down the drain, and in all probability, will do so again, as the concept of relieving a few property tax payers, and imposing additional taxes on everyone in another field, is not held to be politically acceptable, at least in many quarters.

action; Marine Research Committee. In virtually all of the requests for eliminations, the duties and functions of the groups removed are turned over to other state agencies and consequently, little loss of personnel would result.

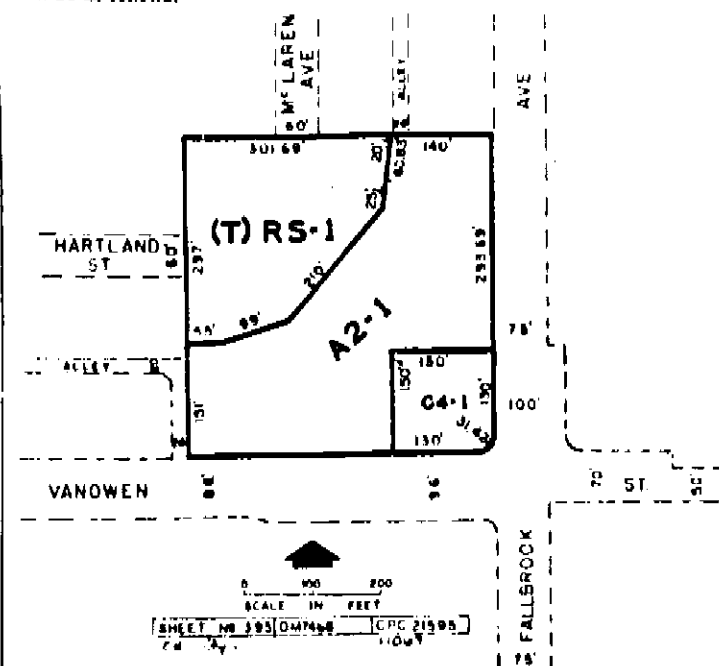

Under establishment of a department of Navigation and Ocean Development, duties of the state lands commission would be transferred to this organization.

The governor said he had found changes proposed for the department of Professional and Vocational Standards to be "in the public interest" and would contribute to the expeditious handling of public business.

financial irresponsibility" as grounds for divorce. I did not get a list of "irresponsible financial transactions". What I did get was the preparation of lists (hibits) reflecting debts and property of the parties.

I emphasized the importance of persuasive evidence re value of party and business interests and that attorneys are probably re deficient in this area of preparation than in any other.

The other point of special emphasis was to the effect that I must frequently overestimate the emotional impact of their evidence in the court. Often there is an element of embarrassment to the losing party inherent in certain bits of evidence. Ordinarily, for purposes of settlement, this element has a value that would not be reflected in the judgment of the court, if tried. The statement re my suffering substantial losses stated directly to this point.

Further, I emphasized that the court requires considerable discretion in domestic relations matters. Therefore it behooves counsel to listen carefully to questions and comments of the court in any pretrial conference so that you gain some insight as to the judge's general attitude. Failure to do so is a distinct handicap in conducting meaningful negotiation.

My reference to length of marriage was not in the context of grounds for divorce. I simply stated that most judges will not award 20-25 relatively good years in dividing the community property.

My reference to serious misconduct over the last two of a lengthy marriage fact will be weighed in conjunction with the length of marriage, among other things.

I did state that the most difficult matters to settle were issues of paternity and custody wherein the father sought custody of small children. Invariably these issues are to be tried. My reference to "goodwill" did not relate to goodwill in the marriage but rather value of "goodwill" in a business or professional practice which is part of the community property. I did not state that this was a matter that was particularly difficult to settle but I did say that if it was tried it presented a very real problem for the Judge to solve. Likewise, the untangling of separate and community property usually confronts a Judge with a most challenging task.

In the interest of clarification I did appreciate your publishing letter.

Sincerely very truly,
 Robert A. Wenke

Jews lived in the Holy Land. Then the troubles came, and now I have no country," the Palestinian Arab native said. "I was sick and tired of having no country of my own," he added with emotion as Judge Herbert V. Walker recessed court for lunch.

Earlier in his morning's testimony, Sirhan illustrated the depth of his feelings by telling how after the Six Day War of 1967 he happened to see a "Zionist" publication telling, according to Sirhan, how Zionists in America had successfully pressured U.S. policy in the conflict. There was a picture of Moshe Dayan on the cover, and also a photograph of Israeli soldiers standing on the east bank of the Suez Canal.

"This burned me up!" Sirhan exploded. "They were victorious! They beat hell out of us! If I could have been there, I would have blasted them!"

That the man who killed Senator Kennedy was a tormented soul is becoming increasingly obvious as his trial continues on its tortured path. Whether a jury will think this diminishes his guilt must wait for whatever denouement this extraordinary legal process has in store.

"Open House" to Be Held at West L.A. Law School

An "Open House" commemorating the completion of its facilities will be held by the University of West Los Angeles School of Law on Sunday, March 23, from 2:00 to 6:00 p.m.

Highlighting the event will be a speech, at 4:00 p.m. by Monroe Price, professor of law at U.C.L.A. A welcoming greeting will be given by Dr. Wallace C. Frank, Dean of the School of Law. A tour of the building will also be made. Refreshments will be served by the University's Law Wives Club.

The University of West Los Angeles is in its third year of existence. It started building its present facility at 11000 Washington Boulevard in Culver City in June, 1967 and finished adding a second story and enlarging its parking lot this last September. The building contains 6000 square feet.

Dr. Frank, received his LL.B. degree from the University of Southern California and a Ph.D. in history from the same institution. Prior to his interest in law, Dr. Frank taught history in the public schools of El Segundo and Culver City.

In addition to student body members and their relatives, the invitation to attend the "Open House" is made to all citizens in the community and those generally interested in the field of law.

Further information can be obtained by calling the University at VE 7-1203.

News 'Dim-out'

Supreme Court held in People v. Watkins, 287 P. 2d 555:

"Public policy demands that documents and records filed in the offices of persons charged with execution of laws relating to apprehension, prosecution and punishment of criminals be treated as confidential and hence not open to indiscriminate inspection, though they are public in nature."

The center said that in certain limited areas, statutes in a few states have provided for inspection of police files and records.

In Pennsylvania, for example, the Supreme Court held in City of Philadelphia v. Puczyński, 24 D. & C. 478, that accident reports prepared by the accident division of the Philadelphia Police Department were public records within the meaning of the so-called "Right to Know Act" of June 21, 1957, which provides for the right to inspect and copy such records.

In Massachusetts, a statute requires that motorists make reports of collisions and these reports have been held to be public records because the statute requires the registrar of motor vehicles to accept them for filing.

The center said that it does not appear that the provisions of the Federal Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) alters the common law in any way with regard to enforcement agencies' records. Section (b), (7) of the act exempts "investigatory files compiled for law enforcement purposes except to the extent available by law to a party other than an agency."

"This exemption seems to remove the records here under discussion from the provisions of the act," the center said.

In conclusion, the center emphasized that a body of law has been developed which holds that police records, such as blotters and arrest sheets — in the absence of a statute creating an exception — unquestionably lie within the category of records not open to public inspection.

 No. 84,118

In the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Los Angeles.

In the Matter of the Estate of GEORGE H. BROACH, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given that the petition of Daniel G. Joseph for the Probate of the Will of the above-named deceased and for the issuance of Letters Testamentary thereon is hereby made for further particulars, will be heard at 9:15 o'clock A.M. on March 19, 1969, at the court room, Room 4, of the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Los Angeles, City of Los Angeles.

Dated February 26, 1969

WILLIAM G. SHARP, County Clerk and Clerk of the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Los Angeles.

By F. Knoder, Deputy. Garden, Weinberg & Jordan (LDW), Attorneys-at-Law, Suite 800, 1901 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, California 90067. (E3337) Feb 28, Mar 7

Such district shall be subject to those standard conditions applicable to urban areas which are set forth in Subdivision 3. of Subsection 6 of Section 13.01 of the Los Angeles Municipal Code to the extent that they are not in conflict with the following special conditions hereby imposed:

(1) Development of Oil Drilling District U-142 shall be conducted from approved controlled drill sites located outside District U-142.

(2) The creation of this district authorizes a Zoning Administrator to permit the drilling and bottling of not to exceed one (1) exploratory well thereunder, subject to all other applicable governmental restrictions and regulations, except that authority is hereby granted to a Zoning Administrator, after consulting the recommendation of the City Administrative Officer, to permit the drilling of not more than six (6) additional wells and production from a maximum of seven (7) wells hereunder.

(3) In order to drill and produce more than the above specified number of wells within District U-142, further approval of the City Council must be obtained.

(4) Upon the request of the City Administrative Officer, the applicant shall furnish him with all of the information obtained from all wells drilled into and beneath District U-142. Such information shall be kept confidential by the said Administrative Officer.

Section 13.04 of the Los Angeles Municipal Code is hereby amended to indicate the boundaries of the oil drilling district established by paragraph (e) of Subdivision 2 of Subsection 6 of Section 13.01 of the Los Angeles Municipal Code, by combining the symbol "D" with the existing zones of the portion of the map which shows the area included within the district.
